COMMUNITY INFORMATION

MATTAWAN PAST AND PRESENT

The Village of Mattawan traces its beginnings to a federal land grant given to Nathaniel Cheesboro, an attorney for the Michigan Central Railroad, in 1839. Lyman Lawrence filed the first town plat in 1850 and called it Mattawan, after the name given the railroad station by Mr. Cheesboro, which is an Indian word meaning "Good Pelts."

In 1839 President Van Buren set aside several thousand acres of land for pioneer settlers. Between 1840 and 1850 a school was established, a grocery store was built, and the first track of the New York Central Railroad was laid. From 1850 to 1880 the town prospered as a shipping point for northern lumber.

Six passenger trains served the town. Fruit growing prospered in the area. By the 1880's Mattawan was shipping carloads of peaches and grapes to all parts of the Midwest.

Today, the downtown Village hosts many fine antique shops, a charming little restaurant with an elegant menu, a furniture upholstery shop, specialty gift shops that feature local artists, a craft shop, deli and ice cream shops. All the stores are run by the owners, so you're ensured a friendly shopping experience.

Discover Mattawan, it's worth the drive.
